THE ASSOCIATION OF ORIENTAL ARTS

History:

Chinese Brush Painting basically is an opaque water color medium using the Four Treasures- bamboo brushes, ink stone, ink stick and rice paper.

The major difference between Chinese brush Painting and Western watercolor is the type of brushes and paper used.

The brushes are made of animal hair (wolf, Weasel, deer, horse, sheep, badger, etc.) and shaped to a point.

The paper produced from fiber plants is very absorbent. Painting is also done on Silk. The ink is made from pine soot and glue.

The paintings are mounted on silk to form scrolls or paper squares to be framed. The mounting process, an ancient art form handed down from generation to generation, preserves the painting for hundreds of years.
